

John is looking for information about time management on Wikipedia.

John thinks he can add more to the content, so he decides to edit the website.

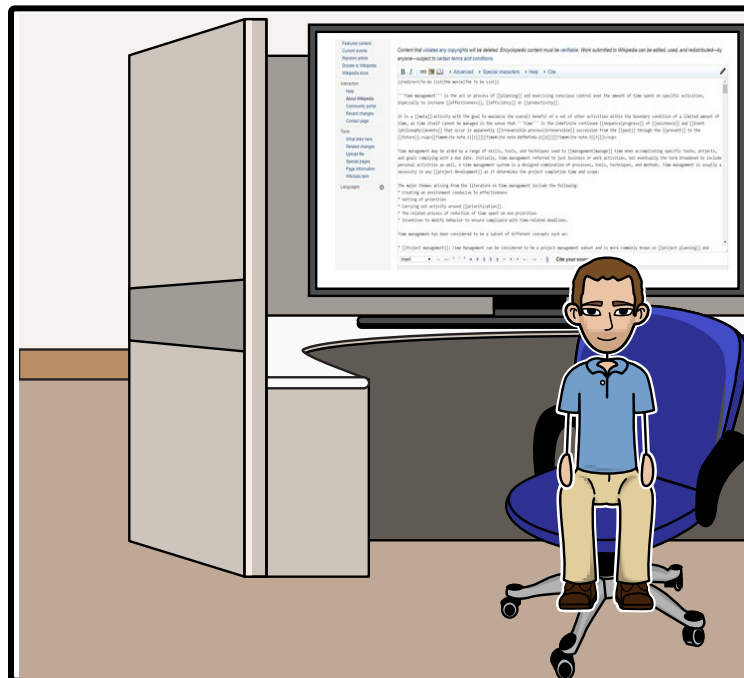

John tries to update the website but as he is not an authorized user, the request is denied.

John creates an account and becomes an authorized user.

John updates the content on website. This is verified by admin before viewed by everyone.

John tells Mark about this new feature to make Wikipedia a reliable source

